“Shattered Dreams: The Rural Crisis” Traveling Exhibit Application

“Shattered Dreams: The Rural Crisis” is a collection of photographs that were donated by David Peterson to the Iowa History Center in 2009. The Pulitzer-Prize winning collection consists of 37 items, mostly framed photographs, taken during the 1980s Farm Crisis in Iowa. If your organization is interested in hosting the collection, please fill out and return the application for at your convenience.

Name:________________________________ Date:_______ Email:__________________________________________

Organization:_________________________________________________________________________________________

Organization Address:___________________________________________________________________________________

Phone:_____________________

1st Choice for Display Dates:______________________________

2nd Choice for Display Dates:______________________________

Does your organization want to hold an opening reception?____ If so, when?______________________________

Will your organization be able to pick up and return the collection?____
If not, can you reimburse the Iowa History Center for travel?____

Please describe where the collection will be displayed (Room size/location, display hardware, etc):

________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________

The collection comes in three wooden crates ranging from 3’ x 3’ to 3’ x 4’. Does your building have a secure location where they can be stored for the duration of the exhibit?____

Questions/Concerns:

________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________

Please fill out and return this form by email to bill.friedricks@simpson.edu or by mail to:
Iowa History Center
c/o Bill Friedricks
701 N C Street
Indianola, IA 50125